CALL FOR PAPER APCJ JUNE 2013

The Africa Peace & Conflict Journal, published by the UN Mandated University for Peace, is accepting full-length articles relating to Gender and Security in Africa for its June 2013 publication. The deadline for receipt of full-length articles is March 30th 2013.

This edition of the APCJ is aimed at providing a space for African feminist debates, practitioner’s experiences, and regional comparative perspectives on gender and security. It aspires to bring together different voices, foundational and current, from across the different regions to have a conversation (theoretical reflection) on gender and security in Africa and to identify the progress and challenges of current discourse and practices of gender mainstreaming in the security sector.

Guide for Contributors

The APCJ is a refereed journal with a panel of international editorial advisors and readers. All articles are anonymously peer reviewed by at least two referees. We welcome the following types of contributions year round and will periodically issue calls for papers on specific topics:

Articles and case analysis - critical case studies or thematic discussion and analysis of topical peace and conflict themes (7,000 words maximum, including endnotes; abstract, 150 words or less).

Briefings/practice - training or intervention strategies, outcomes and impacts, policy review and analysis, country situational updates, and so on (2,000 words maximum).

Book reviews - critical assessments of new books that integrate peace and conflict concerns (1,500 words maximum).

Resources - reports, upcoming conferences and workshops, notices of new books and videos, e-communications, and Web sites that link peace and conflict studies (150 words maximum); documents, declarations, communiqués, and other relevant nongovernmental or multilateral organizational statements (1,000 words maximum).

The editors will consider only material that meets the following requirements:

The submission must be original and not under consideration for publication by another journal or organization or have been published previously.
